STORYWALK BOOK OF THE MONTH

If you take a mouse to school By: Laura Numeroff

The ever so popular character is back in this story! Mouse is ready for his first day of school. What happens when you take a mouse to school? First, he'll ask for your lunch box. Then he'll want a sandwich to go with it. It goes on and on, and you'll have to read the book to find out what kind of trouble taking a mouse to school could be!

Books about expressing emotions

Children may see anger, sadness, and loss in parents and other adults in their lives and be uncertain how to respond. Younger children may have difficulty naming their emotions, but find it easier to identify with a character in a book. Older children may have difficulty sorting through complex feelings and worry about burdening adults who are struggling themselves. Books can help children process, clarify, and put a name to their feelings.

STORYTIME BOOK OF THE MONTH

Roadwork

By: Sally Sutton

There are many big machines and busy people involved in building a road, and this book follows them every step of the way. From clearing a pathway to rolling the tar, to sweeping up at the end. This book is sure to delight young children with its rhymes, noises and fun!

Sandpaper Rubbings

Materials:

Sandpaper of varying roughness
White Printer Paper
Jumbo Crayons

Instructions:

- 1) You can either cut the sandpaper into various shapes, letters, etc. or just leave them as square/rectangle pieces.
- 2) Place a piece of paper over the sandpaper
- 3) Let the children color over the paper and watch the roughness and shape come through the paper!
